

International Journal of Development Education and Global Learning Editorial

This special issue on development perspectives from the Global South has been put together by Professor Catherine Odora Hoppers, who has written a short preface to introduce the themes that inform the articles as well as a concluding 'think piece'.

I would like to thank her and all of the contributors to this special issue for what is a groundbreaking development for this journal.

The fields of development education and global learning often refer to 'voices from the South.' This special extended issue provides that space.

Douglas Bourn

Editor

Director, Development Education Research Centre, UCL Institute of Education